Hello!

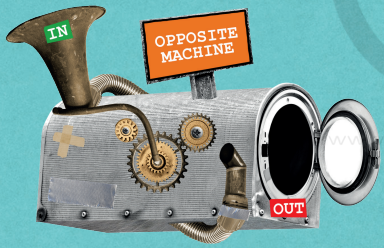

Welcome to the puzzle book that nobody asked for. Before you fetch your thinking cap, slip into your clever clogs and sit your smart ass down, there are a few things you should know.

1. These puzzles are 99% Google-proof

Your devices can't help you here, so lock up your laptops and put the phone away.

2. This contraption is "The Opposite Machine"

As the name suggests, anything that goes in here will come out the opposite. So, if "in" was to go in, then "out" would come out, and if "out" was to go in then "in" would come out. Got it? Great.

3. "Sounds Like"

Anything that goes into this guy's trumpet ears is a "Sounds Like", so you'll need to flannel your inner poet to twerk out the correct dancer.

4. This is “The Riddle Generator”

Anything written on its screen is a riddle. Obviously.

5. Spoilers

The number and colour of each puzzle’s corner tab correlates to the answer section. Don’t venture that far (pages 106-120) if you don’t want spoilers.

6. Choose your own adventure

There’s no order to the puzzles, so flick through at random or work methodically from start to end.
